Site Visit

Ajanta Caves

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

In the subject of Engineering Geology, students are taken to the site visit at Ajanta Caves. The caves are internationally famous. There are 24 caves carved in the single rock mass of a mountain. It is a unique structure built during 8th to 12th century. These are meditation places of Buddhishtas. Students can see many geological aspects in the caves. Prof S.L Patil takes the students of second year to Ajanta caves.

Site Visit

Wastewater Treatment Plant, Nashik

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

In the subject of Environmental Engineering II, students are taken to the site visit at Wastewater Treatment Plant at Nashik. The plant is a huge capacity plant with most advanced technology is use. Prof Rahul Pawar takes the students to the treatment plant. Students hired two private buses and visited the site. The plant authorities were kind enough to show each and every details of the plant. They explained in brief the theoretical background also. The discussions and visit had been very much useful for the students.

Report of Event
Visit to Brick Manufacturing Plant
Material Testing and Evaluation

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

In the subject of Material Testing and Evaluation students of second year are taken to the site visit at Paldhi where they are shown the brick manufacturing plant. Prof Bhupendra Patil and Prof F I Chavan coordinated the visit. The visit was held on 1/10/2019.

Dear Sir,

With reference to your letter for industrial visit, we can conduct training on 20th July 2019 (Saturday) in two batches. First batch of 70 students between 10 AM to 12:00 noon and second batch of remaining 70 students between 1 PM to 3:00 PM. Charges for this training session will be Rs. 150 per student.

I would also like to inform you that Conradtech, the software development wing of Sahaj Academy Edutech LLP has taken following initiatives, which I think will be beneficial to the engineering students.

1. Gateway to Industrial world – an industrial training program for 3 months, 3 hrs per day. Purpose of this program is to prepare students for rigour and vigour expected by industry. (Fees: Rs. 10,000/- per participant)
2. Design your Destiny – 5 hour light transforming soft skills workshop. (Fees: Rs. 750/- per participant)

We would request you to encourage students of SSBT COET to take benefit of these opportunities.

Thanks and Regards,
Vinay Kulkarni
Founder, Sahaj Academy Edutech LLP

Site Visit

Ajanta Caves

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

In the subject of Engineering Geology, students are taken to the site visit at Ajanta Caves. The caves are internationally famous. There are 24 caves carved in the single rock mass of a mountain. It is a unique structure built during 8th to 12th century. These are meditation places of Buddhishtas. Students can see many geological aspects in the caves. Prof S.L Patil takes the students of second year to Ajanta caves.

Report of Event
Visit to Hot Mix Plant
2018 – 19

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

Bituminous mixing for road construction is an important activity in the civil engineering. Considering this, lot of automation has taken place in this field. The automation makes the process faster and economical with a better quality control. It was decided to take the students of TE civil to a visit to the hot mix plant at Paldhi nearby village. The visit was coordinated by Prof Bhupendra Patil it was held on March 16th, 2018.

The visit was extremely incumbent to the students who could see the actual onsite working of the hot mix plant. The on site engineer explained every detail minutely to the students. Students submitted a report based upon their visit.

Site Visit

Ajanta Caves

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

In the subject of Engineering Geology, students are taken to the site visit at Ajanta Caves. The caves are internationally famous. There are 24 caves carved in the single rock mass of a mountain. It is a unique structure built during 8th to 12th century. These are meditation places of Buddhishtas. Students can see many geological aspects in the caves. Prof S L Patil takes the students of second year to Ajanta caves. This visit was held on 17/03/2018.

Visit to Waghur Dam Site and Reservoir

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

In the subject of Water Resources Engineering II students of final year civil engineering are taken to the site visit at Waghur Dam Site and Reservoir. Prof M Husain, Prof P A Shirule and Prof F I Chavan take the students of final year to the site. The dam authorities courteously explained the features of the site and allowed the students to enter into the infiltration gallery too. The visit was held on 6/8/2017.

Engineering is not just limited to books or laboratories. It is a science of site. A student of engineering must visit sites for real world exposure. He/she must have a face to face contact with the site conditions and constraints. Considering this, site visits are invariably incorporated in the curriculum.

In the subject of Engineering Geology, students are taken to the site visit at Ajanta Caves. The caves are internationally famous. There are 24 caves carved in the single rock mass of a mountain. It is a unique structure built during 8th to 12th century. These are meditation places of Buddhishtas. Students can see many geological aspects in the caves. Prof S L Patil takes the students of second year to Ajanta caves. This visit was held on 7/03/2017.
